Dear Ms Smith

Yarriambiack Shire Council rating strategy – Trust for Nature covenants

This letter is to provide you with an up to date list of Trust for Nature covenants in your Shire (Attachment A).

We would also like to highlight an opportunity for Yarriambiack Shire Council to provide a rating concession, exemption or rebate to landholders with a Trust for Nature covenant on their land. Around one third of rural and regional councils across Victoria currently support landholders with a rate rebate or incentive payment of varying levels (Attachment B).

As you may know, Trust for Nature is Victoria's dedicated private land conservation agency. Among other things we work with landholders to protect, manage and restore native vegetation on their land via permanent, on-title covenants, to provide habitat for our endangered plants and animals forever.

Across Victoria, around 1,600 covenants are now registered on title, protecting nearly 80,000 hectares of habitat on private land. You will see from Attachment A that Yarriambiack Shire currently has 19 covenants, representing a total of 1162 hectares of private land permanently protected for the future benefit of all Victorians, but in particular for the benefit of the citizens, landscapes and ecosystems of your Shire.

Some of the benefits of covenanting private property include that these properties:

- help retain key habitat patches and connections across the Shire and increase the health and resilience of the Shire's ecosystems and species;
- mitigate drought conditions by improving soil and moisture retention;
- improve weed and vermin control on the land (active management of non-indigenous flora and fauna is a requirement of the deed);

- ensure that the site will be regularly assessed, with advice provided by Trust for Nature staff into the future, presumably reducing costs to council for environmental management activities;
- support climate mitigation by ensuring that some of the Shire's remaining carbon sinks are secured permanently.

As well as the substantial environmental contributions made by landholders through their conservation work, some are also limiting their capacity to earn income from their land, for example by committing not to subdivide, overgraze or practice intensive agriculture.

To recognise this sacrifice, many Shires use concessions or exemptions to offer some compensation or incentives for private landholders covenanting their land (Attachment B). The two most common rate rebates are a 50-100% refund of the rates covering the portion of land under protection (manually adjusted), and a per hectare rebate (generally $20-$30 per hectare of covenanted land capped at a total of between $500 - $1,000).

Native habitat on private land in Victoria continues to be lost and the challenge is to arrest and reverse this decline. It is now very well understood that the way to do this is to protect and build back habitat for nature, as well as supporting ecosystem resilience and enhanced connectivity. International commitments like 30x30 will become increasingly relevant in delivering these outcomes.

By offering a rate concession or rebate, council will be recognising the commitment and contribution of landholders in your shire for the public good, and providing an important incentive for new landholders to protect their conservation values.

We would be very pleased to discuss this further with you – including presenting to interested staff. If your query relates to rating reform or policy, please contact our Senior Policy Advisor Cecilia Riebl at ceciliar@tfn.org.au; if it relates to covenant data or stewardship, please contact our Stewardship Coordinator Karen Tymms at karent@tfn.org.au.

Kind regards

Karen Tymms
